

Teaching and Learning for a Healthier World

Our Vision

Our vision - that teaching and learning builds a Healthier World - is ambitious but achievable. It is built upon the strengths we already have and will be enabled by the unique structure we created when we brought a school into a hospital network. UHN's Five-Year Education Strategic Plan is centred on four hallmark initiatives: our schools of applied health sciences and continuing education, our research institute and our culture of lifelong learning across all campuses of UHN.

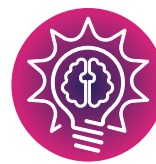

Our Strategic Priorities

Champion a culture of learning and teaching

Drive the convergence of education, care and research

Translate emerging technologies into innovative teaching

Push the boundaries of healthcare education

Be a system incubator and solution hub

Our Hallmark Initiatives

School of Applied Health Sciences

We will deepen and expand the school through strategic partnerships and new programs and streams.

The Institute for Education Research

We will build an institute that bridges theoretical and applied research, clinical experience and education.

School of Continuing Education

We will create a school of learning for life with world-class programs and services.

Teaching and Learning Ecosystem

We will build a culture in which everyone and every team is both learning and teaching.

Our Vision

We will know our strategy succeeded because:

- Our learners and TeamUHN will know us as their lifelong learning “home base.”
- Patients and learners will tell us our team-based, interprofessional learning environment enables the best possible outcomes.
- The world will know we drive the most innovative and effective approaches to learning, while fulfilling current and future health system needs.
